DETECTIVES MISS SLAYER OF TWO BY HALF AN HOUR; BROTHER AIDING IN HUNT

Negro Boddy Traced to Mother's Home in Montclair, Then to Belleville.

SCORES JOIN IN HUNT.

Railroad Detectives and Civil-ians Taking Part in Search for Murderer.

Police of Newark, N. J., and of Morristown, N. J., the detectives of the Lackawanna, Erie and Pennsylvania systems and hundreds of volunteers, white and colored, ranged through Morris and Essex Counties in New Jersey to-day with detectives from Police Headquarters in New York City trying to pick up the trail of Luther Boddy, the scar-faced negro drug peddler and burglar who while on parole shot and killed Detective Sergeant William A. Miller and Francis M. Buckley Thursday night.

A peculiar phase of the man-hunt is the aid being offered to the police by their natural enemies of the underworld and by relatives of Boddy, who have such fear of his brutality and selfishness that they would rather the law took him in charge. The feeling in the underworld grows out of a paradoxical respect and affection pickpockets held for Detective Miller for his fairness and sympathy for such good as he could find in them. They called him "Brother Bill." The pickpockets and drug sellers have channels of passing information to each other from one end of the city to the other which is all their own.

A detective at Broadway and 42d Street fifteen minutes after Miller and Buckley had been killed was intercepted by a pickpocket, who muttered to him:

"Say, did you hear about Brother Bill? A big con with a scar on his face just jumped him off up in Harlem. Thought you might want the tip so you could watch the subway."

The pickpocket slipped away and the detective, running to a telephone to verify the information, learned the first bulletin report of the shooting was only then reaching Police Headquarters.

A negro who did not hesitate to identify himself as an ex-convict approached a policeman in West 62d Street to-day and told him he had just seen Boddy slip into one of the

HIS FOXY PUBLICITY COSTS HIM 2 DAYS IN PRISON AND $100

Furrier Tries to Give S. P. C. A. $500 to Square Cruelty, but It Is Rejected.

Aaron Kossofsky, self-confessed lover of animals and dealer in furs, who turned a muzzled red fox loose in Fifth Avenue last Tuesday for publicity purposes, with the result that the animal was run down by an automobile, which broke one of its legs, was sentenced to serve two days in jail and to pay a fine of $100 by Magistrate Corrigan in Jefferson Market Police Court to-day.

The prosecution was pressed by P. E. Carthy, superintendent, and Herbert Barry, counsel for the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

Kossofsky brought his two children, a little boy and a little girl, to court. His lawyer did not appear, and he made a plea in his own behalf.

Wringing his hands and apparently under the stress of great emotion, he professed his sorrow and shame for his action. He emphasized his love for animals, particularly foxes.

"To show how sorry I am," he cried, "I will donate $500 right now to the S. P. C. A."

Mr. Carthy and Mr. Barry enthusiastically rejected the donation. Mr. Barry urged a severe penalty. He said Kossofsky deliberately planned the act of cruelty with a design for profit and charged that he substituted an uninjured fox for the named animal and placed it in the Central Park menagerie.

Kossofsky's face showed relief when sentence was pronounced. He will serve his term in Jefferson Market Prison. Under the law he will be released at 4 o'clock to-morrow afternoon—and Sunday is not a business day, anyhow.

WOMAN HURT IN SUBWAY CRASH.

Edna McGowan, forty-two, of No. 209 West 87th Street, received contusions of the back and chest when a crowd to-day crushed and rolled her against a train at the 96th Street station of the Broadway-Seventh Avenue subway. She was attended and went home.

GUY STILLMAN HAS POTTER EYES, SAYS GRANDDAD

Baby Centre of Attraction at Pier as Sister Anne Sails for Europe.

ACCOMPANIED BY NURSE

Child With Brothers to Say Farewell—Bud Walks Off With Passport.

Baby Guy, the diminutive bone of contention in the James A. Stillman family, was a centre of attraction this afternoon when he was taken to the Red Star pier to see his sister, Anne Stillman, off on her return voyage to her school in Paris.

The baby, who was in charge of a nurse, accompanied his brothers Bud and Alexander and their grandfather, James Brown Potter, and for a time all were on the steamship, saying their goodbyes. It was during this time that, in turn, the youngster was held in the arms of Anne, who kissed him many times, of Bud and of Mr. Potter.

Those who were standing about, among them a number of photographers busy with their cameras, remarked the similarity in the shape, shape and expression of the baby's eyes to those of Anne, Bud and Mr. Potter. At last some one said to Mr. Potter that the resemblance was striking.

"Yes, little Guy has the Potter eyes," Mr. Potter replied. "And why shouldn't he have? He's my grandson." And with that he too drew the child close to his breast and kissed him.

Mr. Potter was then asked whether he intended to go to Three Rivers, Canada, to aid his daughter, Mrs. Stillman, in her task of settling testimony from Dominion witnesses in the divorce case.

"I shall go there if she wishes it, of course," he replied.

Bud Stillman came down from Three Rivers on purpose to see his sister off.

Anne Stillman had little to say to reporters save that she had had luncheon to-day with her grandfather and that she was going back to school with two of her chums, Miss Francis Davidson, daughter of Henry P. Davidson, and Miss Alice Wodehouse.

Baby Guy was taken off the steamer by Bud Stillman shortly before the steamer was scheduled to sail. As the gangplank was lowered Anne Stillman discovered her brother had walked away with her passport. Bud was found at the end of the pier and when told he had the passport, scurried back to the ship, which was delayed a few moments in order that Miss Stillman might get the passport.

BOY COASTER DROWNS IN SIGHT OF 25 OTHERS

Sled Crashes Through Ice on Staten Island Pond.

In the presence of twenty-five other children who were coasting with him, Carl Carnetti, fifteen, of No. 127 Roosevelt Avenue, Rossville, S. I., was drowned this afternoon when his sled crashed through the ice of a pond near his home.

Carnetti, coasting from the top of a neighboring hill, crossed the ice safely to the furthest limit of the slide and then his sled broke through the thin ice at the edge.

GAS RATE CASE NOW UP FOR FINAL DECISION

Supreme Court Weighs Arguments in Secret Chambers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—The Supreme Court to-day considered in secret chambers the Kings County and Queens County, N. Y., gas rate cases in which New York City is trying to hold the companies to an ancient rate. Hearings were concluded yesterday, but a decision probably will not be handed down for several weeks.

MISS ANNE STILLMAN, ALEXANDER, BUD AND BABY GUY. The above photo, the latest made of the four Stillman children, was taken at the pier to-day just before Anne sailed for Paris to resume her studies. "Baby Guy" was the centre of attraction. Bud came down from Three Rivers, Canada, to bid his sister "Bon Voyage." James Brown Potter, the children's grandfather, accompanied them to the pier.

U. S. RESERVE BANK OFFICIALS ACCUSED OF LAVISH WASTE

Extravagance in New York Decried as Greater Than Tweed's.

Special to The Evening World. WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—A virulent attack upon alleged extravagant expenditures of the Federal Reserve Board by John Skelton Williams, former Comptroller of the Currency, contained in a letter to members of Congress, has brought into the limelight what is described as the "$25,000,000 banking palace" erected in New York City by the board.

Following this attack, Gov. Harding of the Federal Reserve Board has written Chairman of the Board of Directors of each Federal Reserve Bank, suggesting that all further building operations of the board be held up pending consideration by Congress of the Harris bill.

This measure provides that special authority must be given by Congress for the expenditure of money for the erection or fitting up of Federal Reserve Banks throughout the country.

"Viscount Bryce, in 'The American Commonwealth,' gives a vivid and illuminating account of the operations of the so-called Tweed Ring in New York in 1870-71," reads Williams' letter. "After giving instances of corruption, recklessness and waste, he says:

FAST SUM SET ASIDE FOR BUILDING.

"But all the other financial achievements of the ring pale their inefficacy before the erection and furnishing of the County Court House. The amount, which had been expended on that building," he adds, "was variously

POISON GAS BAN VOTED BY 5 GREAT POWERS TO-DAY

Outlawed as an Instrument of Warfare by the Arms Conference.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7 (Associated Press).—Poison gas as an instrument of warfare was outlawed to-day by Great Britain, Japan, France, Italy and the United States, who through their representatives in the Washington Conference approved the American proposal to prohibit the use of that weapon.

The Arms Conference will discuss aircraft limitation on Monday.

The sub-committee reported that it was deemed impossible to limit the use or use of characteristics of aircraft, other than lighter than air machines, and that the question of restricting aircraft in war in the future should be left open for a future conference.

Arthur J. Balfour and Secretary Hughes, it was said to-day by a British spokesman, probably will await a joint request from the Japanese and Chinese delegates to the Arms Conference, to mediate the Sanning dispute.

The Chinese delegation shortly before noon received an invitation from Mr. Balfour for a conference to be held to-day.

JOHN R. CUDAHY FOUND IN PRIVATE HOSPITAL.

Packer Had Disappeared on Eve of His Wedding.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 7 (Press).—John R. Cudahy, a prominent member of the national packers' franchise who disappeared on the eve of his wedding, was found in a private hospital here to-day, where he is under the constant care of nurses.

His father of the prospective bride's statement here relative to the incident, he said, "The wedding ceremony postponed, as a result of the condition of Mr. Cudahy."

MARY GARDEN GETS NEW DEATH THREAT; GUARDED BY POLICE

"The Pig" Cries Singer on Receipt of Menacing Note in Chicago.

CHICAGO, Jan. 7.—Mary Garden, director-in-chief of the Chicago Grand Opera Company and leading soprano, to-day is under police protection after receipt a few days ago of a box containing a pistol and nine cartridges and a letter threatening her life.

"Some wretched person sent me a box with a horrid pistol and a box of cartridges," said the Diva in commenting on the anonymous death threat. "Why the pig?"

It was a closely guarded secret while the Chicago Opera Company was filling its engagement at the Manhattan Opera House just a year ago that Miss Garden was under the constant protection of detectives following the receipt of threatening letters. There was no intimation as to the source of these threats, but it was whispered that detectives even appeared in the chorus during performances so that there would be no opportunity of successful attack on Miss Garden while she was on the stage. These same whispers had it that Miss Garden herself laughed at extreme precautions but that the management insisted on taking no chances.

Four thousand new hundred box cars have been ordered, according to the announcement, of this number 1,000 will be steel automobile cars and the rest general service cars.

DAIL IN GREAT EXCITEMENT HEARS LAST TREATY PLEAS; VOTE TO BE TAKEN AT ONCE

Biggest Crowds Yet Gather to Hear Result as Burgess Appeals for Rejection, With Griffith to End Debate by Call for Ratification.

DUBLIN, Jan. 7 (Associated Press).—The party whips of the session of the Dail headed by Arthur Griffith, in favor of the ratification of the Anglo-Irish Treaty, estimated at 5.20 o'clock this afternoon that out of 122 votes the supporters of the treaty would secure sixty-three, or a majority of four.

The largest crowd that has yet gathered in front of the National University, where the Dail Eireann sessions are being held, greeted the deputies as they entered the building this afternoon to hold the concluding session for consideration of the Anglo-Irish Treaty, with a vote to be taken after a few more speeches, including those of Charles Burgess, Minister of Defense, and Arthur Griffith, who is to close the debate.

Much excitement attended the assembling of the members and every available foot of space in the press room, adjoining the Dail Chamber was filled with guests of the deputies. A number of American visitors were present.

HARDING SUMMONS G. O. P. LEADERS

Governmental Affairs to Be Discussed To-Night at Dinner in White House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 7.—President Harding to-day invited a number of Republican leaders in Congress and several others prominent in the conduct of Administration affairs to a dinner to-night at the White House at which it is understood the legislative situation and governmental affairs generally will be discussed.

Those invited included five members of the Senate, seven of the House, Secretary Weeks, Attorney Gen. Daugherty and John T. Adams, Chairman of the Republican National Committee. The members of the Senate invited were understood to be Senators Lodge, Massachusetts; Watson, Indiana; Curtis, Kansas; McCumber, North Dakota; and Brandegee, Connecticut. The House members are speaker Gillett, majority leader Mondell, Representatives Anderson, Minnesota; Darrow, Pennsylvania; Saunders, Indiana; Chairman Madden of the Appropriations Committee, and Chairman Fordney of the Ways and Means Committee.

GERMANS BOB HAIR OF GIRLS FRIENDLY TO NATION'S FOES

Young Men of Upper Silesia Mark Those Dealing With Alien Troops.

BERLIN, Jan. 7.—German young men in Upper Silesia have revived the practice of cutting off the hair of German girls who have dealings with "enemy troops of occupation," according to an Upper Silesian newspaper which has just been received here.

It reports the case of Hella Dombrowska, recently visited at her home by a man who drew a pair of shears from his pocket and cut off her hair close to the head. Two other girls, Gertrude and Hildegard Weber, suffered a similar fate, the newspaper says, while a number of others recently have been visited by "cutters" who shaved their heads. "The men have adopted the motto:

"By their hair you shall know them."

It was reported that Dr. Patrick McCartan of Kings County, a staunch Republican, had decided to vote for the treaty.

The first speech of the afternoon, delivered in Gaelic by Daniel Corkery of Cork, lasted about one minute. He said he would vote against the treaty.

Dr. Patrick Ward of Donegal supported the treaty.

Burgess began his speech against the treaty at 5 12 P. M. He spoke for several minutes in Gaelic before beginning his argument in English.

The Dail Eireann then adjourned until 7.30 o'clock. It is expected the vote on the treaty will be taken at 9 P. M.

Speeches by Harry Boland and Joseph McGrath of Dublin were features of the morning session, especially that of McGrath, who disclosed that Boland's last trip to the United States, according to Boland himself, was made at the initiative of Eamon De Valera to acquaint American sympathizers with the Irish cause with the fact that it would be necessary in negotiating peace to accept something short of a Republic.

Joseph McGuinness of Longford, speaking for the treaty, said the members of the Peace Committee in the private meeting of the Dail "initially went on their knees to President De Valera in an effort to secure unity."

Mr. De Valera interposed a heated denial that it was he who had split the country, declaring the document brought back by the delegates from London and now before the Dail was responsible for the split.

When the Dail began its session in the morning, speaker MacNeill, who has strongly supported the treaty, gave notice of a motion in his own name, reading as follows:

That the Dail Eireann affirms that Ireland is a sovereign nation, deriving its sovereignty in all respects from the will of the people of Ireland; That all the international relations of Ireland are governed on the part of Ireland by that sovereign status and all facilities and accommodations afforded by Ireland to another state or country are subject to the right of the Irish Government to take care that the liberty and well-being of the
